

The Caledonian Mercury.

Edinburgh, Thursday, May 1, 1746.

From the London Gazette, April 26.

Whitchall, April 26, 1746.

This Afternoon a Messenger arrived from the Duke of Cumberland, with the following Particulars of the Victory obtained by his Royal Highness over the Rebels, on Wednesday the 16th instant near Culloden.

Inverness, April 18.

ON Tuesday the 15th the Rebels burnt Fort Augustus, which convinced us of their Resolution to stand an Engagement with the King's Troops. We gave our Men a Day's Halt at Nairn, and on the 16th marched from thence, between 4 and 5, in four Columns. The three Lines of Foot (reckoning the Reserve for one) were broken into three from the Right, which made the three Columns equal, and each of five Battalions. The Artillery and Baggage followed the first Column upon the Right, and the Cavalry made the 4th Column on the Left.

After we had marched about 8 Miles, our advanced Guard, composed of about 40 of Kingston's, and the Highlanders led by the Quarter-Master-General, perceived the Rebels at some Distance making a Motion towards us on the Left, upon which we immediately formed; but, finding the Rebels were still a good Way from us, and that the whole Body did not come forward, we put ourselves again upon our March in our former Posture, and continued it to within a Mile of them, where we again formed in the same Order as before. After reconnoitring their Situation, we found them posted behind some old Walls and Huts, in a Line with Culloden House. As we thought our Right entirely secure, Gen. Hawley and Gen. Bland went to the Left with the two Regiments of Dragoons, to endeavour to fall upon the right Flank of the Rebels, and Kingston's Horse were ordered to the Reserve. The ten Pieces of Cannon were disposed, two in each of the Intervals of the first Line, and all our Highlanders (except about 140 which were upon the Left with Gen. Hawley, and who behaved extremely well) were left to guard the Baggage.

When we were advanced within 500 Yards of the Rebels, we found the Morals upon our Right was ended, which left our right Flank quite uncovered to them; his R. Highness thereupon immediately ordered Kingston's Horse from the Reserve, and a little Squadron of about 60 of Cobham's which had been patrolling, to cover our Flank; and Pulteney's Regiment was ordered from the Reserve to the Right of the Royals.

We spent above half an Hour after that, trying which should gain the Flank of the other; and his R. Highness having sent Lord Bury forward within 100 Yards of the Rebels, to reconnoitring somewhat that appeared like a Battery to us, they thereupon began firing their Cannon, which was extremely ill serv'd and ill pointed: Ours immediately answer'd them, which began their Confusion. They then came running on in their wild Manner; and upon the Right, where his R. Highness had placed himself, imagining the greatest Push would be there, they came down three several Times within 100 Yards of our Men, firing their Pistols and brandishing their Swords; but the Royals and Pulteney's hardly took their Firelocks from their Shoulders, so that after those faint Attempts they made off, and the little Squadrons on our Right were sent to pursue them. Gen. Hawley had, by the Help of our Highlanders, beat down two little Stone-walls, and came in upon the right Flank of their second Line.

As their whole first Line came down to attack at once, their Right somewhat out-flanked Barrel's Regiment, which was our Left, and the greatest Part of the little Loss we sustained was there; but Bligh's and Sempill's giving a Fire upon those who had out-flanked Barrel's, soon repulsed them, and Barrel's Regiment and the Left of Monro's fairly beat them with their Bayonets: There was scarce Soldier or Officer of Barrel's, and of that Part of Monro's which engaged, who did not kill one or two Men each with their Bayonets and Spontoons.

The Cavalry, which had charged from the Right and Left, met in the Center, except two Squadrons of Dragoons, which we missed, and they were gone in Pursuit of the Runaways: Lord Ancram was order'd to pursue with the Horse as far as he could; and did it with so good Effect, that a very considerable Number was killed in the Pursuit.

As we were in our March to Inverness, and were near arrived there, Major Gen. Bland sent the annexed Papers, which he received from the French Officers and Soldiers, surrendering themselves Prisoners to his R. Highness. Major Gen. Bland had also made great Slaughter, and took about 50 French Officers and Soldiers Prisoners in his Pursuit.

By the best Calculation that can be made, 'tis thought the Rebels lost 2000 Men upon the Field of Battle, and in the Pursuit. We have here 222 French, and 326 Rebel Prisoners, as will appear by Lists hereunto annexed. Lieut. Col. Howard killed an Officer, who appeared to be Lord Strathallan, by the Seal, and different Commissions from the Pretender found in his Pocket.

'Tis said Lord Perth, Lord Nairn, Lochiel, Keppoch, and Appin Stuart are also killed. All their Artillery and Ammunition, of which a List is also annexed, were taken, as well as the Pretender's and all their Baggage. There were also 12 Colours taken.

All the Generals, Officers and Soldiers, did their utmost in his Majesty's Service, and shewed the greatest Zeal and Bravery on this Occasion.

The Pretender's Son, it is said, lay at L. Lovat's House at Aird, the Night after the Action. Brigadier Mordaunt is detached with 900 Volunteers this Morning into the Fraser's Country, to attack all the Rebels he may find there. Lord Sutherland's and Lord Rae's People continue to exert themselves, and have taken upwards of 100 Rebels, who are sent for; and there is great Reason to believe Lord Cromerty and his Son are also taken. The

The Monros have kill'd 50 of the Rebels in their Flight. As it is not known where the greatest Bodies of them are, or which Way they have taken in their Flight, his Royal Highness has not yet determined which Way to march. On the 17th, as his Royal Highness was at Dinner, 3 Officers, and about 16 of Fitz-James's Regiment, who were mounted, came and surrendered themselves Prisoners.

The kill'd, wounded, and missing of the King's Troops (as by the annexed List) amount to above 300.

The French Officers will be all sent to Carlisle, till his Majesty's Pleasure shall be known.

The Rebels, by their own Accounts, make their Losses greater by 2000 than we have stated it. Four of their Principal Ladies are in Custody, Lady Ogilvy, Lady Kinloch, Lady Gordon, and the Laird of Macintosh's Wife. Major Grant, Governor of Inverness, is retaken; and the Generals Hawley, Lord Albemarle, Huske and Bland, have Orders to enquire into the Reasons for his surrendering Fort George.

P. S. Lord Cromerty, Lord Macleod his Son, with other Prisoners, according to the inclosed List, are just brought in from Sutherland by the Hound Sloop, which his R. H. had sent for them, and they are just landing.

Translation of a Letter from the Officers in the Service of his most Christian Majesty, who were at Inverness the Day of the Battle of Culloden, to Major Gen. Bland.

SIR,
THE French Officers and Soldiers, who are at Inverness, surrender themselves Prisoners to his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, and hope for every thing which is to be expected from the English Generosity.

Sign'd Cusack, Murphy, Le Marquis de Guilles, Debau, d'Obrien, M'Donald.
